Access-first learning | modular delivery | partner-ready implementation

This brief is for organisations considering the EduLinked Modular Learning System (EMLS) for accessible learning, digital inclusion, community education, or capability-building programs.

What EMLS is

EMLS is EduLinked's modular learning system. It is designed to support card-based, accessible and facilitator-supported learning across institutional and public learning environments.

- Modular learning structure that can be adapted to different sites and audiences.
- Accessible communication approach, including plain language and alternative-format planning.
- Support for facilitators, learners, partners and reporting workflows.
- Designed for schools, libraries, councils, NGOs, education providers and disability-related settings.

What an organisation may be procuring

Component	What it may include
Learning content	Modular resources, facilitator notes, learner activities, checklists and accessible summaries.
Implementation support	Discovery, setup, module selection, accessibility planning and delivery preparation.
Facilitator support	Quick-start guidance, delivery workflow support and verification-ready processes.
Reporting support	Baseline/follow-up surveys, progress measures, partner feedback and reporting templates.
Accessibility support	Plain-language, Easy Read-style, captions/transcripts and access preference workflows where applicable.

Who EMLS may suit

- Schools and alternative education settings.
- TAFE, adult learning and community education providers.
- Libraries, councils and community development teams.
- Disability services and inclusive program providers.
- Arts, media, digital inclusion and youth participation programs.

- Organisations seeking repeatable, accessible learning infrastructure.

Procurement considerations

- What learner group or community will use EMLS?
- Which modules are the best starting point?
- Will delivery be online, in person, hybrid or facilitator-led?
- What accessibility and communication formats are needed?
- Who will coordinate learners, facilitators, reporting and review?
- What timeframe, budget and governance approvals are required?

What EMLS does not guarantee

- Employment, income or funding approval.
- Clinical or therapeutic outcomes.
- Formal accreditation unless separately confirmed.
- Public showcase, publication or media reach.
- A fixed delivery model without confirmed scope and resourcing.
